To the Class:—

This is our Second Report and many of you have probably wondered why it has not appeared before. It was deemed advisable not to issue it immediately after the Triennial as in that case we should not have been able to publish an account of our week's celebration for the benefit of those unfortunates who could not come back for the fun. We all are indebted to Horton Edmands for his delightful memoirs of those few days last June. You will find them contained herein, and I hope that you will all draw the same conclusion, namely, that under no circumstances must you be absent from our Sexennial.

Great credit is owed the Alumni Association for the very efficient work which they have done in editing this Report. The Secretary also wants to thank all of you who have replied so promptly to the requests for information. Men who do not fill in and send back their blanks promptly and accurately are largely responsible for the increased cost in editing reports. As you have often heard before, but on which too much importance cannot be laid, you are urged to give Class matters your prompt attention, as by so doing you will greatly increase the efficiency of any work which may be in hand and insure a complete record of the Class for your own future reference. Information which any of you may be able to furnish concerning "Lost" men will be greatly appreciated by the Secretary.

It is very important that all who possibly can, help along the Twenty-fifth Anniversary Fund by taking out 20-year endowment life insurance policies. This is the method decided upon by the Class Committee to raise $100,000 by our Twenty-fifth. You undoubtedly have all received requests and notices from Michael Coreoran and Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., of the insurance firm of OBrion Russell & Co., 108 Water St., Boston. If you desire any further information in regard to taking out a policy, or if you have any plan which you think preferable to theirs, communicate with them at once and they will be glad to go over the situation in detail with you.

Our Twenty-fifth Anniversary of graduation, coinciding as it does with the 300th Anniversary of the founding of the College, will be a very memorable occasion, and we must feel able, financially as well as otherwise, to do justice to the Class by turning over to the College a larger sum than they ever before received from a 25-year Class. This sum must be well over $100,000, and the sooner you take out a policy, either alone or with someone else, the easier it will be for us to accomplish our purpose.

Finally, do not neglect or put off answering Class communications, and notify the Secretary at once of any change of occupation or address, also of marriages and births.

JOHN A. SWEETSER,

37 Warren St., Brookline, Mass.

TREASURER'S REPORT

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF 1911:—

Your Treasurer asks that every member of the Class scrutinize carefully the following report of the receipts, expenditure, and present status of the Class Fund up to February 1, 1915.

Primarily, the purpose of this fund is to meet the ordinary class expenses, especially the heavy burden of gathering material for and printing the class reports, as indicated hereafter. Secondarily, by keeping expenses as near as possible to the income figure, the fund is to form a beginning of that gift which we are to make to the College on our twenty-fifth anniversary.

At the present time, the Class has on hand $1,337.64 in cash and $4,936.25 in bonds as listed below—a total of $6,273.89. There should, however, be a total of $9,548.39, as there is $3,184.50 in pledges due but not yet paid. Of this, $404 dates back to our Senior year in college; $630 to June, 1912; $909.50 to June, 1913, and the serious total of $1,241 to last June. Most of this very appreciable sum is in small units which have in many cases been left unpaid by mere forgetfulness. If as you read this, this statement applies to you, let's have a check at once and wind the matter up.

Also, if you are one of a number of men who made their first deposit for a Class Album, or one of a number who now regret that they did not get one of these splendid Class souvenirs when in college, you have in the first case only to send the balance of $5, or in the second case to send $7 to have one of the Albums come to you. The sum of $430.35 credited to the Photograph Committee under the heading of assets represents sums due or volumes in hand which will probably not be completely realized on.

On the whole, your Treasurer feels that the Class Fund is in fair shape but that a great deal more might be done by members of the Class to make it what it should be. Unfortunately, direct, personal approach to those who are behind in payments is largely out of the question, and as a result, the

Treasurer is forced to a very great extent to rely on such indirect appeals as this, and upon the conscientiousness and feeling of personal responsibility and co-operation of the various members of the Class.

If you are behind, let me hear today.

Respectfully submitted,

ARTHUR SWEETSER,

Treasurer.

OBITUARIES

WILLIAM NICHOLS COLER, 3D, son of William Nichols and Lillie (Seeley) Coler, was born at Newark, N. J., August 14, 1889. He was drowned at Tybee Island, Ga., June 23, 1912.

CHARLES MATHER FFoulke, II., was born in Washington, D. C., September 4, 1889, the son of Charles Mather and Sarah (Cushing) Ffoulke. He attended the University School, Washington, and Mr. Evans' School at Mesa, Arizona. He was in college from September, 1907 to January 22, 1908. He died at Tucson, Arizona, November 12, 1912. Charles M. Ffoulke, II., was a direct descendant of the Quaker, Edward Ffoulke, who came from Wales in 1651 and received his grant of land from William Penn; and from Matthew Cushing who sailed from England in 1638 and settled in Hingham, Mass. His father, Charles Mather Ffoulke, a distinguished art critic, was president of the National Society of Fine Arts, and the author of several works on tapestries, on which subject he was the leading American authority. The education of Charles Mather Ffoulke, II., was a very broad and comprehensive one, as his family travelled extensively in Europe, and spent much time among the art treasures of the old world. He was fluent in French, having spoken the language from boyhood, and knew something of Spanish and German. He possessed the true instinct of art and beauty, and displayed so much talent for painting during the short summer, when he worked in Holland, that his master urged him to follow art as a profession. The two years spent in preparation for college, on a school ranch in Arizona, gave him an extended experience of western life and enabled him also to acquire much practical knowledge. He entered college at the age of eighteen and devoted himself to the study of architecture. He was a conscientious and diligent student, and at the same time very popular, and fond of enjoyment. but the severe climate and strenuous life proved too severe a test for his not over-strong constitution; he took a severe cold in January of his first college year and was obliged to give up his work and seek a milder climate. During five years his time was spent in California, New Mexico, and Colorado. He died of tuberculosis, in Tucson, Arizona, where he had just purchased land with the intention of farming in that country. He possessed an active and brilliant mind, great power of concentration, and an unusually bright and loving character. Masters who taught him all bore witness to his power of quickly winning their approbation and affection. Very bravely he gave up all that makes life of value to the young, a career, home, friends, and took up the battle for health with cheerfulness and courage, always giving of himself, as freely as of his purse, to others struggling on the same road. Although his life was short it was filled with infinite love and pity for humanity.

GERALD GROESBECK, son of Ernest Groesbeck and Elinor Francis (Adams) Groesbeck, was born at New York City, July 1, 1876. He died at Brookline, Mass., May 10, 1912.

GEORGE BARNUM HOYT died at Saranac Lake, July 6, 1914. He was born in Albany, N. Y., January 28, 1889, the son of Frank Woolworth and Margaret Annesley Hoyt. He was graduated in the Class of 1911 with highest honors and then taught English in Syracuse University for a year. Determining to enter the ministry of the Episcopal church, he attended the General Theological Seminary in New York. In May, 1913, he was ordained a deacon, and served in churches at Fulton and Copenhagen. His future, because of his brilliancy of mind, and love for his calling, seemed to promise all he had hoped and worked for. He was about to be installed as curate of the Church of the Saviour in Syracuse, when his health suddenly failed and he sought benefit by going to the Adirondacks, but without avail.

On the day when George was to have been ordained to the priesthood, in May, 1914, he was hopelessly ill with tuberculosis at Saranac Lake. He was mercifully spared a long illness, however, and he met disappointment and endured pain like a good soldier. His life of twenty-five years was one of loving service to his family and his friends. His going has changed all the world for us, but we still thank God for having given us a son so noble.

M. A. H.

WILLIAM HUNT was born in Springfield, Ohio, January 31, 1887, the second child of Edward Cassidy and Juliet (Davis) Hunt. He was a graduate of the Mechanicsburg, Ohio, High School class of 1905, and with a slight additional preparation entered Harvard with the Class of 1911. In his freshman year he was fortunate in choosing the elementary course in astronomy, and being of a mathematical turn of mind, the possibility of making this his life work began to be considered, and by the end of the year he had made his decision. During his junior and senior years he was an assistant to Professor Willson in certain courses. At the aviation meet at Squantum in the fall of 1910, William assisted in securing the altitudes and ascertaining the spirals made by the machines. In his freshman year, William entered the fencing class, was a substitute in the intercollegiate meets of that year and took part in every meet during the four years he was in college; he was captain in his junior year, and his team had the distinction of beating the team at West Point that year—the first time in many years. Having graduated with honors, he was given an appointment with the Carnegie Institute Observatory at San Luis, Argentina, and went with an expedition sailing from New York, July 27, 1911. William had some knowledge of Spanish and soon made many friends among the Spanish-speaking people of San Luis. He died by drowning on Sunday, November 19, only three months after leaving this country; but in that time he had so endeared himself to the young men of the place that they asked permission to erect a marble slab to his memory. In college he was a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, the Mathematical Club, the Memorial Society and the Fencing Club.

OBITUARIES

EDWARD ABBOTT JAMIESON was born at Edgewater, New Jersey, July 19, 1889, and was the youngest son of Joseph Boardman and Ida (Derby) Jamieson. The family moved to Newton, Mass., in 1900, and Edward was prepared for college at the Newton High School, where he was a member of the Gamma Sigma Fraternity. Entering Harvard College in 1907, he was elected to the Theta Delta Chi Fraternity. He completed successfully his freshman and sophomore years, and failing in health, was granted a year's leave of absence in the fall of 1909. He died August 25, 1910. During his sophomore year he became interested in settlement work at Dennison House, Boston, and did noteworthy work with a club of young boys. Rev. Arthur Evans Wood, who was at that time connected with Dennison House, said: "Jamieson's work with the boys was indeed miraculous. He had the toughest lot, and he got from them a greater response and degree of order than was manifested in any other club. They felt his power." The men in his fraternity house with whom he lived for two years, wrote of him: "We loved 'Eddie' because of his clean heart, his gentle nature and his grit." He loved his college, and to the last week of his life clung to the hope that he might some time complete his course. He made a brave fight to the very end.

WILLIAM CHARLESWORTH LEVEY died at his summer home on the east shore of Alton Bay, Lake Winnipesaukee, July 5, 1914, after a short illness. He had not been in robust health for several years and only did full work during his freshman year in college. He was obliged to drop out for half a year and for three years did half work. At the end of that time he was obliged to give up altogether and spend the winters in the South. He had been interested in ornithology for many years, particularly in the economic use of the birds, was a warm advocate of their conservation and was strongly opposed to private collecting. In the course of years he had made many fine photographs of birds, nests and young, some of which will be made public later in connection with notes on their habits. He was born in Indianapolis, Indiana, November 13, 1887. For some years his home had been in Brookline, Mass.

PAUL MARIETT, son of Ernest Mariett, Rector of St. James Episcopal Church, Fall River, Mass., and Alice (Carter) Mariett, was born October 24, 1888, at Fall River. His early education, until his 9th year was at home. The next two years were spent in a private school in Cambridge, Mass. On moving to New Haven, Conn., he attended that historic school, Hopkins Grammar School. After graduating from this school, in which he received several prizes, he went to Phillips Exeter Academy where he remained two years, from which school he received several highest prizes. Here, in this school, his literary skill attracted attention. Graduating from Exeter he entered Harvard in 1907. On one of his freshman Greek examination books was this sentence by the instructor: "I give you A in this, not only for the knowledge shown but also for the skill in expression." From early boyhood Paul Mariett showed a remarkable literary skill which he steadily developed both in prose and verse. Some of his stories were published in the Atlantic Monthly and The Youths Companion. He had written several plays, one of which had been presented by the Harvard Dramatic Club in his sophomore year, part of a novel and many poems when the incurable disease, tumour of the spine, of which he finally died, came upon him in the summer of 1910. After inexpressible agony, which lasted nearly two years owing to his marvelous mental and physical vigor and vitality, he died March 14, 1912, at Cambridge, where his parents and sister had moved to take care of him, and was buried in Mt. Auburn Cemetery. His college honors were many. In turn he was editor and president of the Harvard Monthly, member of the Signet, the Student Council and the Phi Beta Kappa.

The Secretary regrets exceedingly some mistakes concerning Paul Mariett which appeared in the First Report, and hereby wishes to correct them.

OBITUARIES

Mariett was a member of the Student Council, no mention of which appeared in the First Report. (P. 138.)

He was Vice-President of the Harvard Dramatic Association.

He was Editor-in-Chief of the Harvard Monthly, of which paper he was extremely fond and for which he did excellent work. K. R. MacGowan was Secretary. (P. 125.)

HENRY DANIELS MATTESON was born December 29, 1882, and died June 24, 1908. His parents were Lucien A. and Mary J. (Daniels) Matteson of Deerfield, Tioga County, Pa. After undergoing serious surgical operations in his youth, he apparently regained his health, and entered college with the class in 1907. During his freshman year, however, his health again became impaired and he submitted to another operation immediately after his last final examination on June 16. Although he lingered for a few days, he did not survive. Matteson had hoped to become a civil engineer.

ALAN MARSHALL OSGOOD was born in Chicago, Ill., February 17, 1889. His father, C. N. Osgood, was a graduate of Harvard in the Class of 1879. Removing to Washington, D. C. in 1896, Alan received his preliminary education in the public schools of that city and entered Harvard in 1907. During his college course he was prominently identified in many phases of undergraduate activity, being president of the Glee Club and Ibis of The Lampoon, and in general, a leading spirit in affairs where his facile pen, his delightful voice, and above all his contagious and indomitable optimism made him an invaluable influence among his associates. The summer after graduation he spent in Europe, returning to New York in the fall, where he took up work in the Brooklyn office of the Lawyer's Mortgage Company, living with "Jack" Reed, "Bob" Andrews and others in a group of Harvard men in Washington Square. Of his work, his employer, Mr. Peter Hamilton writes: "He was looked upon as one of the coming men, if not the coming man of the younger generation, and yet no one seemed ever to be jealous of his success or of his apparently bright future. . . . . If he had one trait more prominent than another it was his capacity for friendship, and, while he displayed fine mental abilities as well, it was certainly this quality which drew people to him and made him so notable in the midst of other capable men.” During this time he was also studying to perfect himself in that natural talent for drawing which he had displayed in The Lampoon, and was developing a style and technique which gave promise of worthy accomplishment in this field. In August, 1912, at the end of his summer vacation on Vineyard Sound, he developed typhoid and went home to Washington, where he died on September 27. It is impossible to think of him as being very far away. His personality is so positive, so dynamic, that it lives now, radiating its sunny influence in his home, at Harvard and in the hearts of his friends throughout the country as surely as if he were personally in the next room or state. Immortality, when expounded in terms of philosophy and religion, is, at best, nebulous. As exemplified in the smile and the song and all that lives today of Alan Osgood, it is self-evident. The following tribute is from a member of the class who was very close to Osgood: “Alan’s unfailing cheerfulness, his sympathy for, and understanding of, his friends; his loyalty and the straightforward, upright way he lived his life, will always remain an inspiration to those of us whose lives touched his.”

JEROME RANDALL, who entered with the freshman class, died at Carlsruhe, Germany, August 4, 1908, at the age of nineteen years. At the Morristown School, where Randall prepared, he took prizes for athletic achievements and literary accomplishment. He was manager of the baseball team and editor of the Salamagundi in 1907, and was an enthusiastic worker for the Morristown system of self-government. He was secretary of the Harvard Socialist Club in the spring of 1908.

ARTHUR EDWIN SMITH was born in Wichita, Kansas, on March 29, 1888, the son of David O. and Delilah (Lawson (Scott) Smith. At the age of three years, he moved, with his parents, to Salt Lake City, Utah, and later, at the age of twelve, on the death of his mother, came to Lynn, Mass., to live with his aunt, with whom he made his home while he was in college. He attended the Lynn schools, and entered college in the fall of 1907, at the age of nineteen. He took the civil engineering course. His death at Cambridge on June 27, 1911, was a great shock to his friends, for he was a young man of promise and character, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him.

STANLEY CATE SMITH, the son of Hamilton I. Smith, '75, and Mary (Cate) Smith, was born in West Roxbury, Mass., July 20, 1890, and died August 25, 1909. The following appreciation is taken from the Roxbury Latin School Tripod: "On graduation from the Roxbury Latin School he entered Harvard with the Class of 1911, and it is a pleasure to record here that he was one of our honor scholars. Stanley is remembered by all who knew him for his loyalty to the school, his unfailing good-will, his cheerful manner, and his readiness to help in every good enterprise. He was one of the editors of the Tripod and did his full share to make it interesting and successful." Smith's course was interrupted in his freshman year (February, 1908) by an operation for appendicitis. Although advised by friends not to attempt to make up the time lost, but to re-enter college with the next class, he was unwilling to do this. By special work in the Harvard Summer School, he was enabled to re-enter the class in September, and by extra courses, to make up his "points" during the sophomore year. He was then, to all appearances, in good health, and was planning a vacation trip when he was taken suddenly ill with a dangerous intestinal trouble. A second operation was soon found to be necessary, and again he faced the ordeal with dauntless courage. The operation was a serious one and he did not rally from the shock that followed it. At a meeting of the class, resolutions of appreciation and sympathy were adopted. "There can be no formal annals of his life. It was too brief to have a history. But there are shining chapters here and there written in the hearts of the devoted parents, he so loved and honored; in the memories of kindred, who had great pride in him; and in the recollections of instructors, classmates, and friends who recall his courtesy and unselfishness. To us he stood, and still stands, as a type of the best Harvard spirit."

WILLIAM OTIS SMITH, son of Rev. Roland Cotton Smith, D.D., and Margaret (Otis) Smith, was born in Boston on December 19, 1889. He entered St. Mark's School in 1904. While at school he was prominent in many different activities, a good scholar, he excelled in literary work, and gave promise of a brilliant career. He was editor-in-chief of the Vindex, and was elected valedictorian of his class. He was successful also in athletics. In college, Otis Smith made a distinct impression, though he was there for so short a time. He was developing his power in literary work, and confirming the promise of his school life. He had the faculty of making and keeping friends—his buoyant and sympathetic nature, his keen wit, his love of life—all gave him the highest estimate of what friendship means. He had strong and definite principles of conduct from which he never wavered, and they won him the respect of his classmates, while they deepened their affection for him. On the 18th of May he went to the Stillman Infirmary with a severe case of scarlet fever, and after nearly five weeks' illness he died on the 19th of June, 1908, the anniversary of the day when he had spoken the valedictory to the school. Positive in his conviction, direct in his thinking, straightforward in his conduct, clear in his vision he looked forward with joy to his work in the world. He was ambitious to be of service, because of the reality of his ideals. As someone said of him, we may say: "The very qualities which make us mourn him are the qualities which make us feel that he is still alive."—St. Mark's Vindex.

PHILIP SNEDEKER, son of Rev. Charles Henry Snedeker and Jane Florence (Watters) Snedeker, was born at Fishkill, N. Y., February 11, 1889. He died at Batavia, Java, February 7, 1912.

OBITUARIES

EDWARD HILDRETH TUCKE, son of Edward Morton Tucke, '62, and Katharine (Parker) Tucke, was born in Lowell, June 10, 1887. He fitted for college at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and after entering with his class, left college in April, 1908. Until November, 1910, he was in business in Lowell and New York, when he went to San Francisco, and died there as the result of an accident, March 11, 1911.

THE TRIENNIAL

Last June we celebrated our "Triennial". It was the consensus of opinion that never before have we had such a good time together. The whole week's program was carried out to perfection, the sun shone upon us with propitious weather from beginning to end, and the crowd turned out in great form, about 300 members of the class attending. The only disappointment was that we did not have more of the men from the woolly West, but perhaps it is too much to expect a man to earn so much carfare in three years.

We assembled at the Parker House in Boston in the early morn, June 15, Monday. We first donned ferocious orange and black striped blazers and other insignia and paraphernalia provided for the occasion by an intelligent committee. As we began to shake hands with old pals of the days when we used to belong to the leisure classes, it became evident that Father Time and other fathers had already begun to place the stamp of dignity upon many of us. Many boasted of mustaches, and many of wives and children, and some had good jobs. There were a few bank officers, an alderman or so, a quantity of already professional men, big business men, and especially an army of bond salesmen from Boston, and men engaged in other "high brow" business. Here and there the profile of a "vest" had already assumed a semi-circular rotundity, and the tops of some few of our heads were beginning to reflect rather than absorb the rays of the sun.

Shortly before noon we began to mobilize, forming in ranks on School street and marching with gyroscopic stability, and with much singing, to the steamer landing, headed by a band, which embarked with us.

The steamer was waiting for us, bedecked with flags and teeming with sandwiches, kegs, and other refreshments. Steamers, like late cabs to Cambridge in the old days, are things which no gentleman is content to ride inside of but must needs climb upon the roof thereof. So it proved with this Triennial army of the Class of 1911, and for a time the good ship's equilibrium was threatened, with so many brains aloft, until at length the ship's officers, and Class officers, and other bouncers persuaded a detachment of the mob to descend into the interior among the sandwiches and the brass band.

Marching to the Beach—Tenniel, June, 1914

THE TRIENNIAL

Just before we started, an incident occurred which all but halted the entire expedition right then and there. A wit on the upper deck pried open a box at the stern containing apparatus controlling the signal bells in the engine room. Said wit fumbled with said apparatus until the engineer suddenly received signals to go forward and back and sideways, and up and down, all at the same time. Instead he went crazy. Meantime the enraged captain rushed to the box on the stern with hammer and nails to nail down the cover, so that there could be no further monkeying with the bells by amateurs. While busily engaged at this piece of carpentering said captain was beset with a cheering crowd of college lads, or rather dignified graduates of college. At this point a second wit appeared on the scene and administered to the captain, as the latter was bent over, a bottle of beer down his neck, the rear of his collar protruding sufficiently to admit of the liquid. If the wit had only poured the beer down the inside of the neck, otherwise known as the throat, instead of outside the neck of the captain, there probably would not have followed the riot that did ensue. But the captain, feeling the cold substance trickling down his spine, and himself thus unlaundered, burst into a frenzy, and—but wait, after the manner of Virgil and Fielding let us call upon the Muse to relate this scene. Sing then O heavenly goddess:

“Just as when a demented bull, peeved at the waving of a red Harvard banner before his flaming eyes, he foams at the mouth, he hurls himself upon offending and unoffending alike, felling them to the earth and tossing them to the sky, or just as when the irate moderator of a town meeting, unable to silence a citizen speaking out of order, when the debate runs high, brings down his gavel with repeated and forceful eagerness upon the table before him, so the peeved captain, beside himself with rage and besmeared with beer and curses, attacked the mob before him, and first brought down his claw hammer or gavel upon the unfortunate head of Archie Smith, though he, all unoffending, had been but standing by as a witness of the battle. The red stream of life gushed forth from Archie's dome. Again and again the captain swings the hammer and the mob besets him hard. He misses one head and then another, but rips the coat of many a warrior. At last the hammer is about to descend upon another of the throng when an agile youth grasps the weapon from behind and wrests it from the wielder.

The embittered mob is then about to hurl the captain into the waves, when all at once there appears upon the deck the great god Bacchus, and cries: 'Hence, O Mars, god of war, 'tis for me and not for thee, the power to command this ship.' "

And, in short, we all drank to the captain, and this time we put the wine inside and not outside his neck, and he went about his business appeased.

On the boat trip we began to shake hands all over again and count up the roll of who were present and who of our old friends were absent. As has been stated, we chiefly lacked the Western crowd, but those who did come from that direction made up in frivolity what they lacked in mass. Sanger Steele came all the way from Chicago, and McNider also came from the Lord knows where. Sanger, however, was also on his honeymoon trip so that he gave us some cause to be jealous of his time. As for the members of the local gangs they were present to a man. Bemis, who grows younger and heavier every day, was the cause of a list to starboard all the way down the harbor, not because of his own proportions but because of the crowd he collected. A reporter who met us at Manchester made a curious mistake in taking notes which has cost Ned Winsor a lot of denying and explaining. A Boston paper, in writing us up the next morning, spoke of Winsor as the father of the class baby.

The voyage to Manchester-by-the-Sea was accomplished without disaster, not one of the party being even sea-sick, doubtless because we all got used to sea voyages on our Senior picnic. The band played, all passing vessels whistled salutes, and we sang merrily. At the landing some of us were a trifle impatient to get ashore and waited not for the gang plank, with the result that there was one broken toe, but, as we had so many toes in the party, approximately ten per man, such a trifle did not impede our progress much. There was also a twisted ankle or two, but, as Duff Beal had provided an automobile for the wounded, and as no two twisted ankles were on one man, we proceeded in comfort on our march to "Singing Beach". The band went in front preceded by two husky warriors, the white hope, Parky Howe and "Doc" Leslie, carrying the 1911 Banner, so that all might know who we were. A cold breeze made swimming rather a courageous act but there were few who did not brave the billows, especially as the carriers of the banner, urging us to follow the flag, waded with it far out into the sea, without even waiting to remove their clothing. We all had been provided with artistic orange and black bathing suits, so as not to shock the summer boarders of Manchester-by-the-Sea, though as a matter of fact, the summer set of Manchester stayed aloof from the beach on that day since they knew of our coming, and they are, it is alleged, a highly exclusive set.

The water was cold but the sunshine was warm, and we played ball on the beach and basked in the sun.

We then marched to the grounds of the Essex County Club, which had been cordially extended for our use. There we held sundry sports and games, and besported over the summer fields like spring lambs until the dinner horn blew.

The dinner was in the club house in the evening. The officers had promised us this was to be some dinner, and indeed it was. In the absence of our chief marshal, Lothrop Withington, who was at that time performing on the successful Union Boat Club crew of Boston, which with the Harvard second Varsity, so distinguished itself at Henley, our second in command, Reggie Foster, performed the duties of side-splitting toastmaster. We sang reminiscent songs and told reminiscent stories of the good old days when we were so young at college. The various officers and committees read their thrilling reports, and the humorists told their new and prehistoric stories. There were the usual soloists and acrobats, all local talent. After dinner we had a sort of bachelor dance followed by singing round the piano. Approaching midnight we returned to Boston via train, and had nothing to do till the morrow, which was Class Day.

Class Day, of course, we devoted almost exclusively to our mothers and our sisters and our cousins and our aunts and our wives, and above all to our sweethearts, and we did very well too. At the thousand and one spreads we enjoyed the salad and the dancing and the confectionery and the other sweet things. An ominous cloud, which for a time threatened to pour rain and lightening upon the Stadium festivities, kindly shifted its course and did not visit us with a shower until much later, and then only for a short time. The sun popped out just at the right moment and glittered on the confetti streams with a more beautiful effect than ever before. Our class entered the Stadium counting eleven long strides and then giving a deep society bow to the ladies. We were much applauded of course. Our orange straw hats made a great hit with the fair sex, though we naturally hardly needed hats to make such effect.

In the evening we sat about, and some of us spooned as usual in the brilliantly lighted college yard, and listened to the bands and the glee club and the general babble of the great social function.

Next morning we were up with the early worms ready for the athletic contests with the class of 1908. Some "terrific" records were made in the track meet, but the great attraction was the baseball game, in which we defeated the enemy by one run, after a hair-raising contest. During the game a piece of double good news spread through the grand stand. Twitchell, at that moment one of our star performers on the diamond, had just become the father of twins. We gave three long "Harvards" with two Twitchells on the end, which made for us the turning point of the game. It cheered on our men to a tremendous spurt. Our opponents could boast of nothing like this good news, and we won.

THE TRIENNIAL

After the game we adjourned to the Weld boat house where we were guests of 1908 at a picnic. While we ate, our digestions were somewhat disturbed by witnessing the 1908 crew defeat ours by a margin of a few inches, over a course approximating one-sixteenth of a mile.

We then marched, headed as usual by our band, to Soldiers Field to attend the Harvard-Yale baseball game. We marched on the field in the form of an "H". When the formation was announced every one seemed to want to be in the bar (of the "H") so that our officers had all they could do to prevent our walking onto the field in the form of a bar rather than an "H".

The Harvard team was good enough to win, all for our benefit.

The next day was Commencement, and we were "right there" as usual, joining in all the exercises, processions and other festivities. In the evening we attended a "grand smoker", for all celebrating classes, in the Boston Harvard Club, and the following morning, Friday, June 19, still coming strong, all that were left of the noble four hundred, boarded our private car for New London to see the races. There we "bust up", and went our sundry ways, bidding each other farewell until the great Sexennial in 1917.
